REFLECTION

A thought for the day: American philosopher William James said, "Man lives by habit, indeed, but what he lives for is thrills and excitement."

Economy Major Concern

Tenth District Congressman Phil Sharp was in Rushville Monday on the final stop in a five-day series of appearances in areas throughout the district he represents.

The Congressman parked his mobile office near the courthouse square and was available to answer questions raised by constituents or discuss issues presently facing Congress.

Sharp said approximately 10 persons came to the mobile office during his hour stay. He added that the major concern of most people he has talked with during this recent sweep through the district is the economy itself.

The representative pointed out that inflation is easing somewhat and that the prospects for a lower unemployment rate are good.

He emphasized, however, that most people do not actually feel much relief from the dual problems of inflation and recession yet. The relief will be gradual, he predicted.

One point of concern that is constantly brought up concerns social security. The Congressman indicated there is no eminent danger that the Social Security system will become inoperative in the near future.

He did stress, however, that the system will probably not be able to keep pace with the cost of living, despite period increases that are designed into the program.

Sharp, who was a professor at Ball State University before winning the 10th Congressional seat from Republican David Dennis in 1974, did say, however, that more emphasis needs to be placed on informing

Truck Forced Off Roadway

No injuries were reported following a one-vehicle accident investigated Monday afternoon by the Rush County Sheriff's Department.

The investigating deputy reported that Sherman Copley, 55, R. R. 3, was en route west on CR 900N. He stated an oncoming vehicle driving at a high rate of speed and in a reckless manner forced him off the road. The Copley truck went off the road on the north side, striking a utility pole.

The accident was investigated one-half mile east of Raleigh in Washington Township.

Damage was estimated at $300 to the pickup truck Copley was driving. No information concerning the other vehicle was available to authorities.

Solons Return To Stalemated Budget

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — The 1976 Indiana Legislature returned to session today with negotiations over a $3.4 billion budget stalemated and Democrats and Republicans each blaming the other for failure to reach agreement during a four-day recess.

Today is the 28th in a session limited to 30 working days. Numerous other matters in addition to the budget for next year are hanging in the balance, including Gov. Otis R. Bowen's veto of a horsetrack betting bill, which will be up for a vote to override or sustain before final adjournment.

A conference committee agreement on a bill concerned with financing of election campaigns and the refusal of one of four other conferees to sign an agreement on an increase in unemployment compensation are other matters awaiting further action. Agreement on a workmen's compensation bill was reached by its conferees and the four lawmakers working on an open-records open-meeting bill still were trying to reach agreement.

But the predominant question of the nearly-ended session was the budget. Late Monday, House Ways and Means Chairman Spencer Schnaitter, D-Madison, walked out of the executive conference committee session, after charging the Republicans, who control the Senate, with not negotiating in good faith.

House Speaker Phillip Bainbridge, D-Highland, called for a caucus of the Democratic majority representatives which lasted about an hour and a half. When it ended, Schnaitter told a news conference he had outlined the Democratic offers in the budget negotiations and "we got 100 per cent support for our position from the caucus."

"The Senate has not negotiated in good faith," Schnaitter charged. "The governor has provided zero leadership. The next move is up to them. (Republicans). This has been like trying to negotiate in a tidal wave."

"If there is no movement on their position ... the fail-safe budget will be their budget," Schnaitter said of the Republicans. He referred to a provision in the current budget that continues it for another year if the 1976 Legislature fails to agree on a new budget.

But Senate Finance Chairman Lawrence Borst, R-Indianapolis, said that the Democrats were being fiscally irresponsible and had imposed limits on the negotiations that prevented full discussion. "What they are talking about is a tax increase for 1977," Borst said of the Democratic proposals for the budget.

However, Borst said he would try "to find some extra money" that might make it possible to resume negotiations on the budget with the Democrats.

"The budget the House called for expends $90 million more than we take in," Borst said. "I can't fault the governor for wanting to have a sufficient balance and not go hog-wild. The budget we are talking about is still $60 million over income."

Biggest dollar difference between the two budgets is in the area of the universities and higher education. The Democrats offered to reduce the appropriation from $300 million to $290 million and the last offer from the Senate was a $5 million increase in its budget version to $275.7 million.

On local school support, the Democrats had come down from $85 per pupil to $75 before the negotiations broke off Monday evening and the Republicans came up to $60 but wanted to eliminate a present provision assuring no school would get less than a specified amount regardless of enrollment drops. Sen. Morris Mills, R-Indianapolis, said this would eliminate the support of "ghost children." But Schnaitter said "it would reduce the funding in inner city schools that are losing attendance."

On highways, the Democrats offered to come up from zero to $14 million but to take the money out of the sales tax on gasoline excise taxes. Republicans were sticking with $20 million from general fund sources.

On welfare, the negotiators had agreed to cancel both the Senate co-payment plan for certain Medicaid payments and the House plan to reduce Medicaid providers — doctors, hospitals and others — by 12.5 per cent. The House insisted on a freeze on nursing home payments with Schnaitter declaring: "I think nursing homes are ripping people off."

On mental health, Borst said the Democrats "never even allowed that to be discussed." The difference between the two

"Best In The State"

Members of the RCHS Talk Team are preparing for the upcoming speech tournament which will be held in Rushville. The goal of team, which has posted an impressive series of victories this year is to take the sectional crown away from New Castle Chrysler, which has beat the local squad out of first place for the last two years.

RCHS Talk Team Readies For Sectional Contest Bid

By JO MORAN

The Rushville Talk Team will carry its best contest record ever into their own sectional Friday afternoon, March 12.

The local speech team will host the Indiana High School Forensic Association (IHSFA) sanctioned tournament at RCHS for the first time since 1968.

This year's team goal involved reversing a tradition of the past. New Castle Chrysler has been the defending sectional host for the last eight years. This year the Rushville Talk Team (RTT) will strive to keep the sectional crown from leaving the city limits.

Speech Coach Jeff Hufford feels optimistic about this year's speakers. "We are very cautious about the outcome. We are feeling much the same pressure as the basketball team, and we have much the same quality talent. We are the favored team this year, but we don't expect everybody else to play dead. I do know that we have the best kids who are among the best in the state. The only thing between us and the first place trophy is a few weeks of solid discipline and practice."

The RCHS Speech Squad has never owned a sectional first place trophy, placing second to Chrysler the last two years. Also trying for a piece of the sectional crown will be high school teams from Connersville, Richmond, New Castle, Blackford, Jay County, Delta, Muncie North, and Wapahani. Two freshman teams from Dennis Junior High in Richmond and Parkview Junior High in New Castle will also be among the entrants.

By state rules, RCHS can only have three entrants in each of the 10 events. The RTT will be represented by its strongest team ever with 24 out of 28 positions being filled by varsity veterans. In Poetry, sisters Janette (a Senior) and Julie Fishell (freshman) will be joined by senior Lora Hiti. Humorous Interpretation participants include senior Dawn Moran, and two sophomores, Nick Gulde and David Todd. Senior Maryjane Connor and juniors Rhonda

Testimony To Resume

Patty's Words May Decide Verdict

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst's own words may determine the verdict in her bank robbery trial.

"If the jury believes Patty, that's the end of the case," says her lawyer, F. Lee Bailey.

After an emotionally charged visit to two hideouts where the Symbionese Liberation Army held her captive in closets, Miss Hearst was to resume her testimony today.

The newspaper heiress, who will be 22 Friday, appeared terrified and near collapse Monday when she accompanied the jury in a defense-requested tour of an apartment and house in which, she has said, the SLA kept her in closets for nine weeks, brainwashing and sexually molesting her while she was blindfolded.

At one point, as she left the San Francisco apartment, with residents watching from windows and reporters pressing close, she was kept from collapsing by two marshals, who grasped her waist and arms.

"When she first went into the apartment closet, she sobbed and cried," said Bailey's associate, attorney Albert Johnson. "She was reluctant to go.

"I had to hold her up. I thought she was going to faint."

Then Miss Hearst was transported 13 miles by car in the rain to the first site of her SLA imprisonment, a small house south of San Francisco in a Daly City tract development.

She was driven directly into the garage to protect her from public exposure and possible threats to her life. She spent 25 minutes in the house, then was returned in a driving rainstorm to San Mateo County Jail.

A guard of 25 U.S. marshals and police kept watch in her automobile caravan to the two residences. Threats from the underground New World Liberation Front, which last week claimed responsibility for a bombing at the Hearst San Simeon estate, intensified the security arrangements.

As Miss Hearst was driven from the Daly City garage, a female marshal sitting with her in the back seat threw herself across the heiress to shield her.

GOP Leadership Summoned

Ford Plan To Keep Secrets Set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With Congress awash with suggestions for better oversight of U.S. intelligence agencies and criticism it cannot keep secrets, President Ford is ready to announce plans which would keep tight control in the executive branch.

Ford summoned the Republican leadership to a morning briefing to outline his recommendations before making them public.

After a Ford meeting Monday with 18 intelligence, military, legal and diplomatic advisers, sources said the reform package aims at bringing the CIA and other cloak-and-dagger operations under stronger government control, with more direct lines of authority and at less cost.

The President was expected to set up a White House monitoring board to assure no repetition of Watergate-style involvement by the CIA in domestic spying in violation of the agency's charter, although both the FBI and CIA have promised not to engage in such practices in the future.

Ford launched the reform study after published allegations the CIA had plotted political assassinations.

House and Senate select committees conducted their own investigations. Congress will consider their recommendations along with Ford's.

Congressional efforts to get a stronger handle on the intelligence community were hurt by continuous leaks, culminating in disclosures last week from the still officially restricted House committee's report.

Rep. Samuel Stratton, D-N.Y., says he will ask Congress to cite CBS correspondent Daniel Schorr for contempt in arranging for publication of the report.

National Lunch, Milk Programs

School System Lists New Meal Policies

The Rushville Consolidated Schools today announced its policy for free and reduced-price meals and free milk for children unable to pay the full price of meals and milk served under the National School Lunch and Special Milk Programs.

Local school officials have adopted the following family size income criteria for determining eligibility:

Children from families whose income is at or below the levels indicated are eligible for free or reduced-priced meals or free milk beginning March 1. In addition, families not meeting these criteria but with other unusual expenses due to unusually high medical expenses, shelter costs in excess of 30 percent of income, special education expenses due to the mental or physical condition of a child, and disaster or casualty losses are urged to apply.

Application forms are being sent to all homes in a letter to parents. Additional copies are available at the principal's office in each school. The information provided on the application is confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility. Applications may be submitted at any time during the year.

In certain cases foster children are also eligible for these benefits. If a family has foster children living with them and wished to apply for such meals and milk for them, it should contact the school.

Under the provisions of the policy each building principal will review applications and determine eligibility. If a parent is dissatisfied with the ruling of the official, he may wish to discuss the decision with the determining official on an informal basis. If he wishes to make a formal appeal, he may make a request either orally or in writing to Donald E. Smith, Supt., 8th & Jackson Sts., Rushville, Indiana 46173; Phone: 932-4186, for a hearing to appeal the decision. The policy contains an outline of the hearing procedure.

If a family member becomes unemployed or if family size changes, the family should contact the school to file a new application. Such changes may make the children of the family eligible for reduced price meals, or for additional benefits such as free meals and milk if the family income falls at or below the levels shown above.

In the operation of child feeding programs, no child will be discriminated against because of race, sex, color, or national origin.

Each school and the office of the Superintendent of Schools has a copy of the complete policy which may be reviewed by any interested party.

Local school officials have adopted the following family size • income criteria for determining eligibility:

Family - Size Income Scale For Free Meals And Free Milk And Reduced Price Meals

Alienation Concerns President

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford believes young people are growing "cynical and alienated" from the American system, and says it is up to educators to find ways to inspire faith in the nation's institutions of law and government.

In a Washington's Birthday address to a convention of high school principals, Ford promised to ask for additional primary school aid money above his budget proposals, and urged them to face what he called "alarming trends" away from traditional educational values.

The proposed 1977 budget allocated $3.3 billion a year to elementary and secondary education for the next three years. A spokesman says Ford will soon send Congress a request for a higher allocation because of savings from the consolidated grants approach to federal aid.

He did not say how much more would be requested, but said an increase was decided on after Ford learned that Congress would be more receptive to block grants if more money were involved.

Oil, Trade Top Matters At Meet

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has begun his six-nation Latin American tour with a meeting with Venezuelan President Carlos Andres Perez on the key issues of oil and trade.

The secretary, who arrived here late Monday, planned to deliver a major policy speech on Washington's hemispheric relations before goinl on to Lima, Peru.

Kissinger's 36-hour stay in Caracas has thus far been free of any anti-American incidents, although university students demonstrating about an unrelated matter Monday shouted some anti-U.S. slogans when confronted by police.

Shortly after his arrival, Kissinger was driven to the Miraflores presidential palace for the first of at least three meetings with Perez, who — due to Venezuela's oil wealth — has become one of the leading spokesman for the Third World.

On his way to his first meeting with Perez, Kissinger traveled over the same street on which then-Vice President Richard Nixon and his wife were stoned and spat upon by a mob in May of 1958. This time, the biggest obstacle was the afternoon rush-hour traffic.

Venezuelan sources told UPI the Venezuelan government put some 50 members of an extreme left-wing group called "Red Flag" in protective custody some 24 hours before Kissinger's arrival.

Kissinger's scheduled address to a Venezuelan-sponsored conference on the shape of relations between the United States and South America's oil giant was one of two planned by the secretary during his nine-day Latin American trip.

The other will be later this week in Brasilia, the capital of Brazil.

U.S. officials traveling with Kissinger said the proposed speech was a thorough and thoughtful analysis of inter-American relations, the problems that exist and what Washington is prepared to do about them.

Yonkers Averts Financial Default

YONKERS, N.Y. (UPI) — Yonkers, New York state's fourth largest city, averted an actual financial default today, but officials still must sell some $2 million in tax anticipation notes just to stay solvent through the week.

Yonkers went into technical default at midnight Friday when it failed to raise $12.5 million to renew or retire outstanding bond anticipation notes.

But officials explained at the time that a "real" "real" default would occur if the city could not meet obligations as they were presented for payment when the banks opened at 9 a.m. EST today

During the weekend deputy state Comptroller John Feeney worked out an $8.9 million package to save the city from default, including $5.4 million in state funds and an agreement with Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. to defer some $3 million worth of notes it holds.

Manson Cultist Returns To Court

SACRAMENTO, Calif. UPI—Manson cultist Sandra Good returns to court today for a pretrial hearing in her case on charges she conspired to mail death threat letters and made threats in telephone calls to a newspaper and radio stations.

A court official said Miss Good, 31, former roommate of would-be presidential assassin Lynette Fromme, requested the hearing but did not indicate what was to be discussed.

Miss Good is charged with conspiring to mail 171 death threat letters to corporate executives as part of a Charles Manson "family" effort to stop pollution of the environment. She is also charged with making threats in telephone conversations with the Detroit Free Press and radio stations in Hamilton, Ont., New Orleans, and Altoona, Pa.

Heroin Distribution Proposed

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. UPI — The nation should consider a restricted program of distributing heroin free of charge to hardened addicts in order to reduce drug-related crime, says Rep. James Symington, D-Mo.

His proposal is for a program similar to that now operating in Great Britain, said the congressman.

He said Monday that as a U.S. senator he would work for basic changes in the nation's drug policy, possibly including a new heroin program.

He formally filed with the Missouri secretary of state for the seat being vacated by his father, Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo. He said he expects to receive support from the elder Symington during the campaign.

Three Killed When Plane Crashes

LEBANON, Ind. (UPI) — Three persons, including two policemen and a firemen, were killed Monday when their small plane crashed in a wooded area southwest of Lebanon.

The victims were identified as Jerry Landis, 42, Larry Hooks, 30, and Monty Robey, 24, all of Zionsville. Landis was a Zionsville policeman; Hooks a suspended policeman, and Robey a member of the Zionsville Fire Department.

Hooks had been suspended recently pending the outcome of a court suit he filed against the town of Zionsville.

Investigators said the single-engine, four-seat Piper airplane crashed shortly after takeoff from the Boone County Airport. The accident occurred during a thunderstorm.

Landis was identified as the pilot of the plane, owned by Hooks.

Picket Lines Safely Crossed

HUNTINGBURG, Ind. (UPI) — Police and company security guards escorted truck drivers and loaders who crossed picket lines Monday and entered the strike-bound Dolly Madison Industries Timely Plant No. 2.

No incidents of violence were reported.

Loading of materials began. The strike by Local 331-H, International Brotherhood of Upholsterers union, began Dec. 6 and has been allegedly linked with at least two incidents of vandalism, although no striker has been charged in either incident.

On Jan. 19, the tires of 62 truck-trailer rigs at the Huntingburg plant were slashed and several truck windshields broken. On Jan. 31, state police reported windows in the homes of several DMI supervisors broken by slingshot-flung marbles, following rejection of what the company said was its final offer.

Escaped Prisoners Still At Large

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Two prisoners escaped from a municipal court holding room Monday and were still at large today. Police described them as dangerous.

The escapees were identified as Wilbert L. Hatcher, 22, and Clifton L. Wade, 24, both of Indianapolis. They were awaiting a court appearance on charges of armed robbery.

The charges stem from robberies of persons on city streets and of a grocery store Jan. 24.

The two were arrested last week in Canton, Miss., and, police said, threatened the lives of two Indianapolis policemen who returned them to the capital city.

Investigators said Hatcher and Wade escaped from the holding room of Municipal Court 4 when the bailiff's attention was diverted by another prisoner who was having a seizure. They slipped through another courtroom and down an elevator.

Officials said the bailiff had not locked the holding room. The two prisoners were dressed in civilian clothing and were not handcuffed.

Consumer Affairs Department Set Up

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — A consumer affairs department has been set up in the Indiana Public Service Commission, officials announced Monday.

It is staffed with people who have been involved in service and complaints for the PSC and will be headed by J. Whitney Bibbins.

His starting staff will be Jean C. Mills, who has been director of service and complaints, and Donna Gilleland, secretary.

A public information officer soon will be added, commission officials said.

To reach the Consumer Affairs Department, write or telephone:

Tornado Watches Issued Monday

More Storm Activity Expected

By United Press International

Turbulent weather caused some scattered damage around Indiana Monday night, and more shower and thunderstorm activity was expected tonight. No injuries were reported.

Portions of Southern and Central Indiana were under tornado watches for a while Monday evening.

A tornado warning was sounded at Indianapolis after a funnel cloud was spotted aloft. It did not touch down. Another warning was issued in Montgomery County, again after a funnel cloud was sighted, but it, too, remained airborne.

Strong winds ripped shingles from the home of Kenneth Elkins in Plymouth. Mrs. Elkins said "it sounded like a train came right over the top of our house."

A mobile home was overturned by winds near Adams west of Greensburg.

The National Weather Service said showers and thunderstorms should develop again this afternoon and continue into the night. "A few many be severe with heavy rains," The NWS said.

Showers also were possible Wednesday.

Temperatures today headed into the 40s north to the upper 60s south. Lows tonight should dipinto the 40s and 50s, and highs Wednesday are forecast for the 50s and lower 60s.

The extended outlook said showers were possible again Friday and Saturday. Highs toward week's end should be in the 50s with lows in the 30s and 40s.

Thunderstorms spawned heavy rains and midwinter tornadoes in the Midwest Monday and unseasonable temperatures raised fears of snow-melt flooding today in four states.

The thunderstorms and fog were involved in at least six deaths Monday, three of them children killed in a bus-truck collision in pea-soup visibility at Lake Placid, Fla.

The three other deaths came when a single-engine, four-seat plane developed engine trouuble on takeoff in a storm and crashed in a wooded area near Lebanon, Ind.

Tornadoes spun out of a line of thunderstorms in southern Illinois Monday, touching down near Taylorville and Pana, towns 30 and 45 miles southeast of Springfield. Damage to some homes and a church was reported in Pana.

Four hours later, about 8 p.m., twisting winds which state Police Trooper Fred Stilley said had a "roar like a train" hit a square-mile area near Anna, Ill., along Illinois 146.

The winds demolished two mobile homes, damaged two others, inflicted major damage to four homes, popping out big windows in two of them, and downed power lines and uprooted trees.

Bill Travis, about 25, got out of one of the demolished mobile homes with only a cut hand. "I don't see how he got of there alive," said Stilley.

To the south, another trooper, Roger Draves of Murphysboro, said he saw the wind blow at least three cars off a highway. "It was raining so hard, I couldn't see the end of the (patrol car) hood," Draves said.

The National Weather Service said unseasonably warm temperatures have spread north through the Ohio Valley and eastern Great Lakes, causing significant snow melt. The melt, along with heavy rains, was expected to cause rises and possibly flooding on rivers and streams in New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio. In Michigan, rivers across the Lower Peninsula were reported over their banks or at near flood levels Monday.

Cleveland, Ohio, was soaked with more than 2 inches of rain and Springfield, Ill., got close to 2 inches. Detroit and Toledo, Ohio, both got more than one inch.

Four inches of snow fell on Green Bay, Wis. A cold front has left up to one foot of snow in northern Utah. Blowing and drifting snow has closed all roads leading into southern Idaho. Winds of 62 miles an hour were clocked at Burley, Idaho, Monday night.

Dense fog in the Chicago area caused delays of 45 to 55 minutes in takeoffs and arrivals at O'Hare International Airport, the nation's busiest.

Veto Adds Fuel

Nit-Picking Concerns President, Reagan

Nit-picking concerns both President Ford and Ronald Reagan in their campaign travels. And Ford's veto Friday of a $6.2 billion jobs bill handed Democratic candidates a ready-made issue they didn't hesitate to cash in on.

Friday, Ford appeared in Orlando and the Fort Lauderdale area, vowing to "be in this ball game until the last whistle."

"I think we'll win in Florida," he told 1,000 supporters and a Disney World Mickey Mouse in Orlando. But even if Reagan beats him in Florida, "it won't deter me one bit from continuing the effort right up to Kansas City" and the GOP convention.

He portrayed himself as the "moderate" candidate, indicating — though not by name — Reagan is "to the extreme right." Ford also criticized Reagan for "nit-picking" on foreign policy.

Reagan, who was campaigning in Illinois Friday, appeared irritated with reporters who pressed him at a news conference on exactly how he would transfer federal social programs to the states under what was once called his $90 billion budget cut. "I have told you it will be a phased, orderly system. I think you have to realize that you are nit-picking," he told a reporter.

The former California governor also was asked about detailing his personal finances, as he was called on to do Thursday by Ford, who released his own personal financial data.

"I've put my affairs in the hands of a blind trust so I will not have any conflicts," Reagan said. "I cannot answer the question of net worth. I have no way of knowing."

Rep. Paul McCloskey, R-Calif., who ran for president four years ago, demanded Reagan disclose fully his net worth because "the Republican Party today is branded by most people the party of the Lockheeds, the Gulf Oils and of the big business of America..."

Democrats Jackson, Sargent Shriver and Fred Harris were in Massachusetts and all blasted away at Ford.

Jackson charged the administration with "deliberately withholding" energy research and development funds from Massachusetts. "Massachusetts is still being punished for voting Democratic in 1972," Jackson said.

The others hit the jobs bill veto. "This veto is just one more part of Ford's long line of anti-people, big-business policies. President Ford has become 'President No,'" Shriver said.

3rd Largest In U.S. History

Depositors Safe In Bank Failure

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (UPI) — An army of 150 federal banking agents swarmed over Hamilton National Bank, tallying cash and assets. Within hours, they declared it the third largest bank failure in U.S. history.

But, officials said, depositors stood to lose nothing. The only change they would note when doors opened today was the name — no longer Hamilton National, but the First Tennessee National Bank.

When the federal tallying was through Monday, the First Tennessee National Corp. of Memphis stepped in and bought Hamilton National for $16,251,000.

George W. Hill, chief of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation's division of liquidation, said that in size Hamilton National's failure was behind only Franklin National Bank in New York, with $3.7 billion in assets, and the United States National Bank of San Diego, with assets of $1.265 billion.

Hamilton National buckled under a load of more than $84 million in foreclosed and questionable loans sold to the bank by Hamilton Mortgage Co. Both the bank and the mortgage company are owned by Hamilton Bancshares, Inc., one of the state's largest bank holding companies.

The Chattanooga bank was the largest of 11 in the chain. It was understood to have had about $34 million in foreclosed loans and $50 million in questionable loans.

It was reported the bank posted its stock as collateral for $80 million in loans from a group of New York banks. That money is still owed.

Those who would suffer the most, Hill said, were Hamilton's shareholders. The bank's stock, which sold for about $25 a share in 1973, dropped to $2 or $3 a share last week before trading was suspended. Today, it was virtually worthless.

The deal to sell Hamilton National to First Tennessee National, a bank holding company that owns First National Bank of Memphis, went through within an hour of the announcement that the bank was insolvent and had been placed in receivership of FDIC.

Hill and his 150-man force moved in Monday afternoon, as soon as the bank closed, to begin counting money and proving assets. The agents spread out through the bank's operations center, its warehouse and 23 branches.

Hill said that as buyer First Tennessee will get the good assets, in this case mostly good loans. The FDIC will take over loans that are the most questionable and an agent will live in Chattanooga for several years attempting to eke out as many benefits as possible from those.

persons that Social Security should not be considered the sole means of support unless absolutely necessary.

Modern pension plans or other ways of insuring an income of some kind which the Social Security payments can supplement is the best way to plan for the future, he said.

Sharp also commented on recent developments concerning investigations into the CIA and FBI.

In his opinion, the recent series of disclosures has hampered the CIA, which is in charge of intelligence operations around the world, but no long-lasting or seriously damaging results will be noticed.

His comments come in light of anticipated changes that are to be made public later this week by President Ford concerning tight controls on intelligence gathering institutions.

He also stated that the recent appointment of George Bush as head of the CIA was "a mistake." He considered the decision to place a man with possible future political ambitions as an unwise move.

He added, however, that such action was typical of moves made by President Ford. While admitting the President and his wife are both held in high regard by the public for their openness, Sharp felt that many of Ford's decisions have not shown the decisiveness in strong leadership that is needed at the present time.

Admitting that people in many instances are apathetic with the entire realm of politics now, he projected that the recent downward trend will be reversed shortly.

A series of events, ranging from Watergate to disclosures of the misuse of political power by the FBI and other agencies, hit the national conscience within a very short period of time.

Recovery from some of the blows that have come with these disclosures will take time. He stated, however, that such a let down was inevitable after the many years that citizens have placed high elected officials on a pedestal.

Noting that this is an election year for himself, he said he felt the present system of electing representatives every two years is still a good thing.

The frequent trips back to his district, either on regular business or on a campaign are seen as beneficial to the Congressman. Getting the views of his constituents and their feelings on various matters is important in his activities, he said.

PATTY—

Miss Hearst had expressed fears of assassination from radical groups seeking retribution for her testimony against the SLA, her lawyers said.

Johnson said Miss Hearst probably would testify for two more days under direct examination by Bailey. He said the defense expected two call about six more witnesses and would wind up its case in a week.

Bailey later said the witnesses would include three brainwash experts, two lie detector specialists and a psychologist.

Federal Court Judge Oliver Carter used the President's Birthday court holiday for the tour.

Although brought to court in handcuffs each day, Miss Hearst was not manacled during the tour. It was reported the reason was the belief that seeing her shackled might prejudice the jury against her.

Johnson said a plan to have Miss Hearst and the jury also visit the bank Monday was postponed because "the bonding company insuring the bank would not allow it to be opened on a holiday."

Franklin D. Roosevelt served in office longer than any American President — he was elected to four terms. William Henry Harrison died after only serving one month as President.

The new edition of your telephone directory is going to press soon.

If you have only a single listing, a lot of people are going to have trouble looking up other members of your family.

Certainly, your wife deserves her own listing.

And giving a teen-ager a place in the directory is a nice way of saying "You're growing up."

To add or change a listing just call our business office. They can tell you how little extra an additional listing will cost.

It's as easy as picking up the phone.

Ideas and Ideals

Blood Pressure

When was the last time you actually walked somewhere just for the sake of walking? If your response to this is that the idea is either silly or there just isn't time to do so, you may be contributing to the growing number of persons suffering with high blood pressure.

Physical fitness is important to all of us. And one way to make sure you're fit as you think is to find out if your blood pressure is normal. High blood pressure is a serious disease, and having blood pressure checked is a painless and easy process.

When a doctor takes a blood pressure reading, he simple wraps the blood pressure cuff around your arm above the elbow, pumps air into the cuff and records the readings. It is simple and painless—but very important. If high blood pressure is left untreated, it is a potential killer. Early detection and proper medical treatment can keep it under control.

In a community such as this one, where many persons are engaged in jobs where they do receive quite a bit of physical activity on a routine basis, the likelihood of having high blood pressure may not be quite as great—but there is no reason for taking a chance.

When a person has high blood pressure, it can make the heart pump harder than normal, and the arteries become less elastic. After a while, the heart may get larger, then weaken and stop pumping effectively.

Another name for high blood pressure is hypertension. In most cases, it is painless and produces no symptoms. When a sign does crop up, it may be bothersome headaches now and then, in the back of the head and upper part of the neck. They strike most acutely when blood pressure is relatively low in the early morning.

Other symptoms may be shortness of breath, fatigue, insomnia or excessive flushing of the face. But, these symptoms could stem from other causes, too. The best way to find the cause of the problem is to tell your doctor your symptoms and let him to the detective work for a diagnosis.

Checking blood pressure takes little time and can prove highly beneficial in the long run. Maybe there isn't time to take a walk just ror the sake of keeping fit—maybe. But there should never be any excuses for not taking proper health care seriously.

Letter To The Editor

To The Editor:

I am writing in regard to the article in Friday's Republican the suspension action by the Board of Works against Fireman Dallas Reynolds. The charges are failure to report to duty without notifying proper authorities.

I think the public deserves to know the reason he did not report for duty; although he did notify his shift captain, which I might add has always been the procedure. He has been under a doctor's care since Jan. 21 and a patient in the hospital at New Castle since Feb. 2. He is still in the hospital at this time. His doctor allowed him a 24-hour furlough to attend the meeting Thursday night, and he had to re-enter the hospital Friday morning.

His shift captain was notified on the morning of the 21st that he was ill and was going to the doctor that day. His shift captain was notified again on the 30th that he was still ill and was in fact entering the hospital on Feb. 2.

No other fireman has ever been brought up before the board for being ill. I think this is grossly unfair to discriminate against one man in this way. He has been harrassed and threatened continuously since he was hospitalized.

It appears to me that the "powers that be" have decided that he must go so if the board votes in his favor on this suspension another charge will have to be invented.

Thank you for printing this, I just wanted to make sure all of the facts were brought out.

I want to add in closing that the Fireman's Union is backing him in this action.

Thank you,
Mrs. Dallas (Cadie) Reynolds
R. R. 7, Rushville

Speaking Of Your Health

By DR. LESTER COLEMAN

I have heard that it is now possible to use some chemical to sober up after a bout of drinking. Do you know anything about this?

Mr. S.L., Minn.

Dear Mr. L.:

A series of experiments have been going on in an effort to find a way of removing alcohol from the blood, as a sobering-up process.

Fructose is a specialized type of sugar which apparently accomplishes this purpose, with a fair degree of speed.

This particular type of sugar is very expensive. For this reason sucrose, another sugar derivative, is being used for the same purpose.

A group of alcoholic volunteers was studied. It was found that both fructose and sucrose were "found to be more effective in hastening the removal of alcohol from the blood than ordinary glucose (the most common sugar)."

Those who have been studying this advise that patients with liver disease should not by themselves embark on a program of self-treatment with these sugars. Complications have been reported, despite its value as a reducing agent of alcohol in the blood.

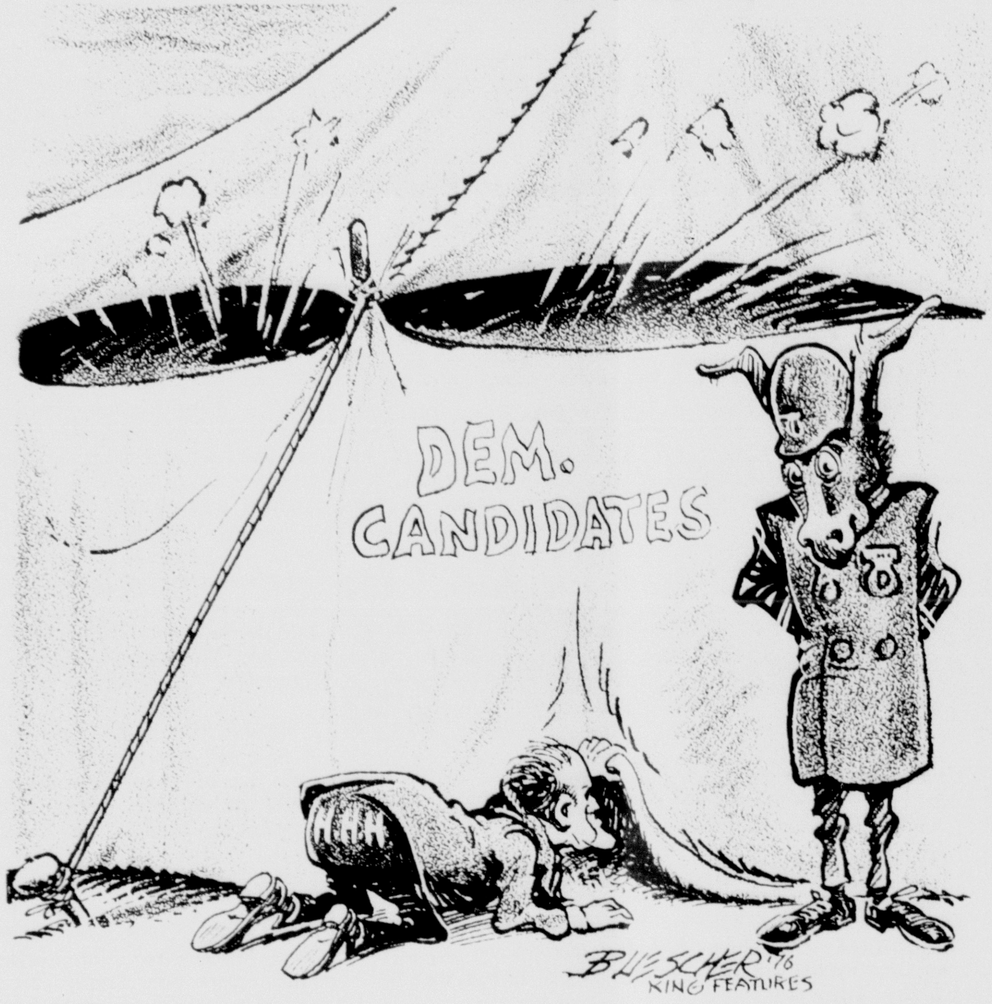
OUTSIDE LOOKING IN



Attorney General

Hoosier Day

By DONALD WHITE

THE ATTORNEY GENERAL plays an unusual role in the law making process in Indiana.

By law, he must receive notice and enter every case which contests the Constitutionality of a state statute. Because of this role, he is assigned the responsibility to review every bill passed by every session, sending an advisory opinion as to the constitutionality to the governor, strictly based upon legality. The role is reinforced each year with a letter from the governor requesting such service.

The governor's role is much different in the process. He examines every bill from a policy standpoint, whether it is good or bad for the majority of citizens. He is not bound, and often risks court challenges as to constitutionality. Most governors also hire outside legal counsel to examine bills, frequently signing those even with obvious defects.

Such laws place the attorney general in an unique position. Having filed a public document questioning the constitutionality of a bill, he must enter court and counter arguments which he originated.

THEODORE L. SENDAK called a press conference. Subject to be discussed was final settlement of an anti-trust action filed by his predecessor in 1969. Six years and one month later, final distribution of damages won against gypsum companies is underway. Some 125 local governmental agencies, primarily school corporations, will share the final $93,150.07 triple-damage recovery with the state receiving a major share of $28,556.14. Next largest share is over $7200 received by Gary with several checks as low as $25.

Damages were allocated on the basis of the money documented as spent for gypsum board during the period of the case. It is the third such major recovery made in similar actions during Sendak's terms. Others were against cast iron pipe manufacturers and drug firms producing a commonly used antibiotic.

DURING THE conversation, newsmen questioned Sendak about the defects and ommissions his office had discovered in the new penal code. Product of several years work and revision, approved by the Indiana Bar Association, passage had been made the priority item of the Bowen administration. The bill has passed both chambers with the future resting in a conference committee ironing out minor differences.

Billed as the first revision of Indiana's criminal law since 1905, all previous laws are repealed and replaced by the new code. All offenses are classified by degree, with many previous criminal acts deleted intentionally. Sexual acts in private between consenting adults would no longer be a crime. Major difference is use of determinate sentences set by the judge rather than indeterminate sentences. It is believed to spell out and eliminate abuse of plea bargaining.

SENDAK USED HIS complete staff, along with volunteer help to review the onslaught of new bills. He must await final passable and receipt from the printer to avoid last minute changes. Currently, he has assigned five full-time deputies to review the penal code prior to results of the conference committee, and finding serious defects and omissions.

One example he cited was elimination of the Ghost Employee overwhelmingly passed by the General Assembly in 1972. Restricted to filing only "civil" cases to recover state monies, and with no criminal authority, Sendak recovered over half of the money or some $27,000 paid payroll ghosts.

Submitting the information to the Marion County Grand Jury as required by law, no criminal indictments resulted. Serious defects were found in the law, corrected by the new statute which would now be eliminated.

THE PROPOSED NEW Penal Code applies rape and prostitution statutes equally, regardless of sex of the offender. However, Sendak pointed out it practically eliminates any chance of conviction of statutory rape.

He pointed out traditionally under Indiana law, sex acts with a female under age 16 were legally considered rape, regardless of consent of the parties. Under the revision, strict liability is removed, and the accused only has to claim "reasonable belief the victim was over 16 years of age.

True, statutory rape laws have resulted in many miscarriages of justice, particularly in this day and age when maturity appears earlier in life. Frequently, the female contributes to the misbelief as to age, and may not deserve protection of a strong law. However, I am not ready to completely abandon legal protection of youth entirely.

Great Decisions

U.S. Groping For Latin American Policy

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — As it celebrates its own bicentennial, the United States still is groping for a comprehensive policy toward the younger republics to the south — Latin America.

The "new dialogue" between the United States and Latin America is two years old but neither side has begun to listen seriously to what the other has to say.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger launched the "new dialogue" phrase in time for a meeting with colleagues from 24 Latin American countries in Mexico City in 1974.

That meeting produced a beautifully-worded joint resolution but little else.

Some of the events that followed were:

— Kissinger repeatedly postponed a trip to Latin America because of pressing business in Europe, Asia and the Middle East.

— The U.S. Congress approved a trade bill that generally liberalized import conditions for Latin American products but angered governments throughout the region by taking a slap at Venezuela and Ecuador for belonging to an oil cartel.

— A foreign ministers' meeting Kissinger was to have attended in Buenos Aires was called off due to Latin resentment over the U.S. trade law.

— The Organization of American States, the U.S.-backed regional body, split on the question of ending sanctions against Cuba. The United States was criticized by some of its friends for seeming to encourage the measure and then abstaining from voting. Later, the OAS agreed to permit member states to adopt individual policies toward Cuba.

— The United States and Cuba made symbolic gestures interpreted as the first signs of a thaw after 16 years of hostility. The thaw suffered a sudden frost when President Ford objected to Cuba sending thousands of troops to fight on the side of a Soviet-backed movement in Angola, while the United Satates supported the other side.

— Revelations of U. S. corporate bribes to Latin American governments caused the overthrow of the Honduran president and provoked widespread criticism.

— Disclosure that the United States invested millions of dollars through the CIA to "destabilize" the government of Chilean president Salvador Allende outraged Latins committed to the principle of nonintervention, which U.S. spokesmen have regularly honored in formal statements.

— A congressional investigation confirmed Cuban Premier Fidel Castro's accusations that the CIA had tried repeatedly to assassinate him, using Mafia gangsters to deliver poison, among other plots.

— Congressional opposition appeared bound to sink any agreement the state department works out on the future of the Panama Canal. Panamanian strongman Omar Torrijos scheduled a meeting of Latin America presidents in June to rally support for his country's demand for sovereignty over the Canal Zone and a share in operating the canal.

The list is partial, but it gives an idea of the distance between reality and rhetoric in hemisphere affairs.

In all fairness, Latin America is a puzzling area full of internal contradictions. Its nations differ from one another in language, culture, economic development and racial background.

Oil-rich Venezuela and Ecuador have fabulous foreign exchange earnings, but many of their people live in abject poverty.

Other nations of the region import all of their oil, adding a huge burden to slender local economies.

A third group, including giant Brazil and troubled Argentina, supply part of their own petroleum needs but dedicate a crippling amount of dollars to buying the remainder abroad.

Right-wing dictatorships have trampled human rights in Chile and Uruguay without being able to solve the economic problems that brought them to power.

And all over the region, worldwide inflation is squeezing populations where a large percentage already live on a marginal basis.

One example is Argentina, once the area's most prosperous nation, where inflation now is bursting the fabric of everyday life.

The cost of living in Argentina rose 335 per cent in 1975 and took a fresh jump in January of 1976 for a 12-month rise of 359 per cent.

Internal factors are mainly responsible for Argentina's troubles.

The Peronist government elected by a landslide in 1973 tried to roll back prices while raising wages.

It was no surprise that the increased incomes soon started chasing the limited number of available goods and prices rose despite the freeze. Production and distribution were disrupted. Customers grew weary of the repeated phrase "no hay" ("we're all out").

Japan's Textile Industry Seeks New Path

TOKYO (UPI) — Japan's once-dominant textile industry is an ailing giant today, needing redirection to meet sharpened competition.

While floundering in its worst business slump, the industry is struggling to cope with increasing competition from South Korea, Hong Kong and Nationalist China on Taiwan.

Higher personnel and production costs are making it increasingly difficult for Japan to compete against these nations at home and abroad.

Komataro Kondo, an executive of the Japan Export Clothing Makers Association in Osaka, center of the industry about 300 miles west of Tokyo, said the heightened competition demands reorganization of the Japanese industry.

"We no longer can compete against low-price products from our neighboring countries. We have to shift emphasis to production of high-class, fashion fabrics," he said.

"In the long run, we need dialogue and coordination with our competitors in order to establish the rule of orderly imports and exports. It is undesirable to unilaterally impose restrictions on imports from these countries."

The industry dates its downhill trend from the government's decision to accept import controls imposed by the United States in October of 1971 in exchange for reversion of Okinawa from the United States to Japan. The government decision was strongly protested by the textile makers.

The controls were imposed following a massive export drive by the Japanese industry in the late 1950s and early 1960s, aimed primarily at the United States.

In 1960, Japan's exports of cotton yarns and textile products totaled approximately $482 million at the existing exchange rate of 360 yen per dollar, accounting for 12 per cent of Japan's total exports, according to Finance Ministry statistics.

In 1974, the ratio had dropped to 0.2 per cent with exports amounting to roughly $346 million at the exchange rate of 300 yen per dollar.

At the same time, Japanese imports of raw cotton, yarn and fabrics rose from $425 million in 1960 to $1.338 billion in 1974.

Kondo said in the 1972 peak year imports from neighboring competitors amounted to nearly 30 per cent of Japan's domestic demand

"We hope their exports to Japan will be held at a maximum 15 per cent of domestic demand, and to attain this we need dialogue and cooperation with them," he said.

Kondo also said the Japanese industry will have to cut its total work force of about two million persons by about 15 per cent to be competitive.

Government-industry talks on ways to achieve stable economic growth after a decade of highpitched growth center on reorganization of the industry to improve productivity.

The industry's big three — Toyobo, Kanebo and Unitika — are cooperating in production and marketing of natural fiber products. Mitsubishi Rayon Co., No. 3 man-made fiber manufacturer, eliminated its staple fiber department and cut employment by 20 per cent.

Washington Window

Government Issue In Campaign

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It seems likely now that "big government" will be an issue in the 1976 presidential campaign and that the voters will hear a variety of solutions — sensible and nonsensical — from the candidates before November.

Some of these proposals will be mere campaign yapping, such as the routine attacks on red tape and spending that candidates depend upon for applause in their speeches. Others are more thoughtful proposals to reduce the cost of government and its intrusion into citizens' private lives.

But the sad truth is that whether silly or serious, most plans to conquer big government fail. The following are some possible reasons why this is so.

First, many budget cutting proposals are not aimed at governmental waste and inefficiency. They are based on ideological objections. Thus politicians who oppose federal aid to education or subsidies to business look first to the federal programs in those areas for cuts.

The real argument in these instances is not whether a program works, but whether it is proper.

In general, whether budget cutting is used as a code word or not, existing federal aid programs that are in place are extremely difficult to cut back. Ongoing aid programs have both the congressional and-or White House support that got them enacted originally and the public "constituency" they develop once they get started. They are hard to kill, even if they are inefficient and too expensive.

Second, the approach taken by most budget-cutters ignores human nature, which is another way of saying political reality. Even when an ideological dispute is not present, candidates and elected officials tend to overestimate the public support they will have and underestimate the opposition they will face when they propose specific budget cuts.

This common mistake probably is caused by confusing general public approval of government economy with its specific reaction to individual budget cuts. A politician might get hearty applause calling for a cut in wasteful Pentagon spending but shrieks of pain when he proposes the closing of an Air Force base in the same community.

The same thing happens when a candidate is cheered for opposing deficit financing by government and damned for suggesting that the postal rates return the cost of delivering the mail.

So what can be done to end wasteful spending? Perhaps several things.

The first would be to stop trying to make ideological points with budget cutting. Start making war on waste for its own sake, whether it occurs in a program with favored political credentials or not. If a proposal or program is a bad idea, confront it on its merits rather than looking for a side door entry to the argument.

The second would be to stop expecting special interests to give up government sugarplums without a fight. Organize people and groups interested solely in efficient use of tax funds and then confront the defenders of wasteful spending with the choice of accepting justified reductions or risking the loss of everything.

In short, try using proven political methods of coalition-making and negotiation to get the job done.

These are modest proposals and they probably would work no major miracles. But they would at least give everyone some relief from the rhetoric and noisemaking that now passes for budget-cutting.

Spiritual Pathways

By REV. JAMES THARP

"For the kingdom of God is not food and drink but righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Spirit." (Romans 14:17).

Paul found reports on the Church in Rome that disturbed him. The Christians were dividing over the eating of meat, the keeping of certain days and the issues around the ceremonial law. He had to do something. While he had not organized the Church, nor had he ever been to the great metropolis at the time of his writing, Paul dreamed of going to Rome to make the world center his base for world evangelism. He must help the Christians there to settle their differences.

So his first advice is: accept one another. "As for the man who is weak in faith, welcome him, but not for disputes over opinions. One believes he may eat anything, while the weak man eats only vegetables. Let not him who eats despise him who abstains, and let not him who abstains pass judgment on him who eats; for God welcomed him. Who are you to pass judgment on the servant of another? It is before his own master that he stands or falls." (Romans 14:1-4).

Accepting a brother in Christ means that we refuse ourselves to pass judgment on him. This does not mean that we agree with him. But it does mean that we refuse to change him by our opinion. We are willing to leave him to his God and trust the wisdom of God to communicate with him.

At the same time we must remember that we also need communication with both God and our fellow Christian. We may have a lot of changing to do ourselves.

Ali Bearing Down, Fight Is Friday

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI) — Muhammad Ali, bothered by a hacking cough, was bearing down in his training today while Belgian challenger Jean Pierre Coopman was winding his up.

The two will meet for the world heavyweight title Friday night in Roberto Clemente Municipal Coliseum.

Ali went seven rounds, never throwing a punch until the last, in Monday's sparring against three separate opponents. The champion had a cough and the sniffles, but his press agent, Bobby Goodman, said the cold was slight and "a common thing to fighters."

Coopman, sharing the training area set up in the ballroom of the sumptuous El San Juan Hotel, did not spar at all Monday. His trainer, George Kanter, said the challenger would spar for the last time today.

"He has peaked. My problem now is to keep him that way," Kanter said.

He said the Belgian fighter would weigh in at between 203 and 205 pounds Thursday. Ali's trainer, Angelo Dundee, said the champion would be down to 225.

Ali's physical advantage is not only in weight. He is a bigger man than Coopman.

But Dundee, watching Coopman shadowbox Monday, remarked that at least the challenger had long arms, an apparent reference to the last Ali-Frazier bout in which Frazier could almost never reach the champion.

"And he's got a punch too," said Dundee.

Punch or no, Coopman never made the heavy bag ring out like lightning claps Monday, as Ali had done an hour earlier.

In the workout, Ali demonstrated his famous back-up defense, gloves in front of his face and arms guarding his midsection, but on three occasions he deliberately threw himself wide open to let his sparring partners, Alonzo Johnson, Jimmy Ellis and Rodney Bobick, pound his body. Bobick, who came last, had to face the champion's single offensive spurt of the day.

"This is my new style," Ali told the crowd. "I let them wear themselves out. Give them two or three rounds. Frazier got tired. Foreman got tired. Coopman is going to be very tired by round three. I'll let him do all the work."

Kanter said Coopman was quite prepared to do all the work. He indicated he was counting on the challenger's top physical condition and endurance to gain him the crown.

Pass "Last Real Test"

Hoosiers Take Victory Away From Boilermakers

By United Press International

About the only team that might beat Indiana's No. 1 ranked basketball team is Indiana itself.

The chance that youthful Coach Bobby Knight, as intense in practice or at a game as his most inspired players, will let that happen was mighty slim.

The Hoosiers ran their Big Ten season record to 13-0, their Big Ten winning streak to 32 games and their overall winning streak to 52 regular season games Monday night with a 74-71 decision over intrastate rival Purdue.

The game stacked up as the last real test for the Hoosiers, the last stumbling block for them en route to a second straight unbeaten 18-0 season in the Big Ten. Now Indiana will entertain Minnesota, Iowa and Ohio State and travel to Wisconsin and Northwestern to close out the regular season.

Monday, Purdue pulled within one point of the Hoosiers in the final minute but couldn't break up Indiana's spread offense, which the Hoosiers used to stall the final four minutes. Kent Benson, with a blocked shot and two key rebounds in the final minute, stymied Purdue's last chances to win.

Scott May had 26 points for Indiana and Eugene Parker 23 for Purdue, both players winning praise from the rival coaches.

"May is a pro shooter," Purdue's Fred Schaus said. "He makes the tough shots even with a good pressure defense on him. Indiana doesn't let you do a lot of things you like to do but that's been the case for the last 52 games."

Since the race for the Big Ten championship appears over, it's left to Michigan, Iowa, Michigan State and Purdue to scrap for a runnerup spot and an at-large NCAA tournament berth, with Michigan, now 10-3 and two games ahead of Purdue, in the best position for the stretch run.

Michigan, ranked 11th, beat Eastern Michigan, 94-76, Monday night. Minnesota gave Wisconsin its 12th straight loss, 98-74, Iowa dropped Northwestern, 81-68, and Illinois ran its Big Ten record to 7-7 with a 91-73 win over Ohio State.

Rich Adams hit a career-high 29 points to lead Illinois, and Mike Thompson had 33 points to strengthen his runnerup berth in the Big Ten individual scoring race.

There was one major upset in other games involving top-ranked clubs as Auburn stunned No. 9 Tennessee, 73-72, in overtime. Elsewhere among the top 10, Marquette (2) downed Tulane, 75-63, Notre Dame (10) whipped Butler, 92-79, Alabama (13) dumped Mississippi, 79-70, and St. John's, N.Y. (16) stopped Seton Hall, 68-63.

Eddie Johnson hit a 15-foot jump shot to send the game into overtime and then added three crucial free throws in the last 10 seconds of the extra period to carry Auburn to the upset of Tennessee. All five Auburn starters, led by Gary Redding's 21 points, hit in double figures as Tennessee fell out of first place in the Southeastern Conference. Bernard King had 19 for Tennessee and Ernie Grunfeld added 17.

Earl Tatum's 23 points led Marquette past Tulane for the Warriors' 16th straight victory and 20th against one loss and Leon Douglas scored 35 points to carry Alabama past Mississippi and hold first place in the SEC. Adrian Dantley scored 21 of his 27 points in the second half as Notre Dame downed Butler and George Johnson's 20 points and 15 rebounds led St. John's past Seton Hall.

Elsewhere, Holy Cross topped Army, 85-81, St. Francis, N.Y. beat St. Bonaventure, 71-65, The Citadel edged William and Mary, 64-62, Florida dumped Georgia, 98-84, Louisiana State whipped Mississippi State, 80-69, Memphis State beat Southern Mississippi, 87-82, Bradley nipped Creighton, 78-77, and DePaul stopped Virginia Tech, 73-65.

"Dr. J" Leads Nets Over Colonels, 100-99

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Julius Erving said it with a perfectly straight face.

"I didn't have a very good game. I lost my concentration near the end and it almost cost us the game."

Actually, the New York Nets' superstar "bad game" consisted of 31 points, 13 rebounds and five assists as he led the New York Nets to a 100-99 squeaker over the Kentucky Colonels in the only game played in both pro basketball leagues Monday night.

What distressed "Dr. J" most was his errant pass that Kentucky converted into a three-point play by Artis Gilmore to close the gap to the final one-point margin.

"Okay, that's one bad play, but in the last 18 seconds Dr. J made two super cross-court passes when they were playing keepaway to sit on their lead," said Kentucky Coach Hubie Brown, who makes no secret of his awe for Erving's ability.

New York Coach Kevin Loughery paid tribute to his team's "character" in carrying on most of the game without either of its two centers, Kim Hughes and Jim Eakins, both sidelined with ankle injuries.

Without its two pivotmen, New York went with 6-foot-8 reserve Tim Bassett for 34 minutes and the much shorter Nets held the Colonels to a virtual standoff in rebounding.

New York was credited with 51 rebounds, compared with 53 for Kentucky, but the Nets enjoyed a 12-9 edge in offensive "boards."

Loughery also credited the Nets' newest acquisition, guard Ted McClain, for an excellent floor game against his former Kentucky teammates. "He's going to help us a lot, particularly on defense," the New York coach said.

The Colonels were led by Gilmore with 26 points, including 11 in the last five minutes, but the defending American Basketball Association champions still went down to the fourth defeat in their last five games.

Tournament Time Coming, ULCA Making Strong Bid

NEW YORK (UPI) — It's easy to tell that tournament time is just around the corner because the UCLA Bruins are beginning to peak.

UCLA, winner of eight of the last nine NCAA basketball championships and nine consecutive Pacific Eight Conference crowns, climbed back into the top five in the United Press International Board of Coaches ratings this week after defeating highly regarded Washington for the second time and increasing its record to 19-3.

The Bruins moved up two places and took over the No. 4 spot as Maryland, fourth a week ago, lost to North Carolina for the second time and tumbled all the way to No. 7.

UCLA and Nevada-Las Vegas made the biggest jumps among the top 10. Nevada-Las Vegas advanced two places to No. 6 after an impressive victory over Centenary that boosted the Rebels' record to 24-1.

Indiana (21-0) continued to hold on to the No. 1 spot, but for the first time since early in the season the Hoosiers were not a unanimous choice. Indiana received 39 first-place votes from the 40 coaches, who participated in this week's ratings, with North Carolina spoiling a sweep by getting one first-place mention.

North Carolina's first-place vote wasn't enough to enable the Tar Heels to move past Marquette for the No. 2 spot, however. The Warriors remained in second place with North Carolina holding third.

Rutgers (21-0), which almost had its perfect record spoiled by Manhattan last Saturday, remained in the No. 5 position with Las Vegas, Maryland, Washington, Tennessee and Notre Dame rounding out the top 10. Washington advanced one place from last week despite its two-point loss to UCLA while Tennessee fell two spots from a week ago after splitting a pair of games.

Hialeah Track Sold To New Jersey Interests

HIALEAH, Fla. (UPI) — Owners of financially troubled Hialeah Race Track agreed to sell the 51-year-old showplace of horse racing to John J. Brunetti Monday because he made a firm commitment to keep it operating.

In doing so, the syndicate of wealthy sportsmen turned down a firmer cash offer from James Donn, president of nearby Gulfstream Park, who admitted he wanted to close down the flamingo-decorated track and move its racing to Gulfstream.

Brunetti, a 45-year-old New Jersey contractor, offered a reported $14 million for Hialeah, contingent on approval by two banks that hold more than $12 million in mortgages on the 200-acre establishment. It was about $1 million less than he offered last November, a deal negated by the banks.

This time, both Brunetti and John W. Galbreath, Hialeah board chairman, said they felt the banks would approve the agreement.

Public protest scuttled a proposed sale of the track's racing dates to Donn in November 1974, because it would have meant the end of Hialeah.

Donn tendered a check for $100,000 and a bank commitment for $13.5 million Monday, but Galbreath said that keeping Hialeah open was "our most important consideration."

"Our basis for buying the track in the first place was to keep it open in the best interests of quality racing," Galbreath said. "Mr. Brunetti is committed to do that."

Hialeah suffered its worst losses when state authorities rotated its long-held racing dates in the mid-winter tourist season to Gulfstream and made Hialeah operate a spring meeting.

Brunetti assured the Hialeah stockholders that, "first and utmost, I intend to keep Hialeah open whether I have the middle dates or not." He said he would "actively seek" the mid-winter dates and would "support any aid to the track not getting the dates." He said he hoped Florida track owners would unite to promote their common interests, such as obtaining a "tax break" from the state.

Berenson Scores Goal

United Press International

Red Berenson, the original hero of the St. Louis Blues, was back in the hero's role Monday night against the California Seals.

Berenson, who led the Blues into the Stanley Cup finals the first three years the team was in existence, was exiled to Detroit for four seasons. Since his return to St. Louis last season, his contributions to the team have been overshadowed by stars such as Garry Unger and Chuck Lefley.

But against the Seals, Berenson scored two goals, including the winning tally in the third period, for a 4-2 victory. Pierre Plante set up both goals.

On the winning goal, Plante's shot was stopped by California goalie Gary Simmons. Berenson took the short rebound off Simmons' stick, sped around the back of the net and tucked the puck inside the right goalpost before Simmons could move laterally.

"The goalie was down and he didn't get up in time," said Berenson. "I probably could have passed the puck out to someone but I thought I'd try to sneak it in there."

Plante made a perfect pass to Berenson, storming into the slot, in the first period, when the Blues outshot the Seals 15-5.

Claude Larose, the hard-working veteran on a line with Lefley and Derek Sanderson, also scored two St. Louis goals, to give him 10.

The Seals tied the score at 2-2 on a disputed goal by Gary Sabourin on a power play in the second period. California's Bob Girard slammed into St. Louis goalie Eddie Johnston and both players went tumbling into the net. Sabourin's shot from 40 feet sailed through the tangle of arms and legs for the goal. The Blues protested but referee Bob Meyers ruled Girard had been pushed into the net by Blues defenseman Bob Gassoff. Rookie Dennis Maruk also scored for the Seals.

In the only other National Hockey League game, Borje Salming scored two goals to lead the Toronto Maple Leafs to a 5-1 romp over the Washington Capitals. Salming's power-play goal at 13:16 of the first period gave Toronto a 1-0 lead and his goal at 7:01 of the second period put the Maple Leafs ahead to stay at 2-1. Darryl Sittler, Scott Garland and rookie Claire Alexander added third-period goals for Toronto.

Vail Injured

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mike Vail, the New York Mets' rookie batting sensation last season, injured a foot playing basketball and it will be in a cast for three to four weeks, the Mets announced Monday.

The Mets said Vail dislocated his left foot at the ankle in a basketball game Sunday at Norfolk, Va.

Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States Senate passed a resolution Monday by voice vote commending the U.S. Olympic team for its performance in the Winter Games that ended Sunday at Innsbruck, Austria.

The resolution, authored by Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., praised the atheletes' training, discipline, sacrifice, skill and courage in representing the United States.

12 Selected

Fashion's Best Dressed Named

NEW YORK (UPI) — The top banana in the new list of best-dressed women wears a costume of banana bottom in a current magazine feature for which she poses.

The number one clothes horse of 1976 is Marisa Berenson, heading the list of 12 best-dressed women announced Tuesday in New York and notable for its absence of politicians' wives in this the year of the presidential election and celebration of the U.S. bicentennial.

The current issue of Vogue magazine features, among other photos, Miss Berenson wearing some of the clothes gathered for a New York Metropolitan Museum of Art exhibit.

One photo shows Miss Berenson modeling a vintage 1920s costume worn by the late Josephine Baker, doing the Charleston in Paris. The costume is little more than a spangled brief bra and a G-string bottom with fake bananas strung on nude net.

Eleanor Lambert, the New York publicist who has compiled the list of best-dressed since the 1940s (a list of best-dressed men came along later), said the 12 selected for the singular honor this year symbolized "today's...correct yet contemporary dress." Balloting, she said, was among 1500 "fashion authorities and other well-known internationalists."

The 12 listed as "the epitome of today in dress" follow:

—Marisa Berenson.

—Mme. Francois Catroux, Paris, wife of an interior designer.

—Kitty Hawks, Hollywood, film literary agent.

—Mrs. Reinaldo Herrera, Jr., Caracas, Venezuela.

—Mrs. Irving Lazar, Beverly Hills, Calif.

—H.R.H. Princess Eduard de Lobkowicz, Paris.

—Sylvana Mangano, Italian actress.

—Mme. Manuel Machado-Macedo, Lisbon and Paris.

—Mrs. Frederick Melhado, New York socialite.

Horoscope

WEDNESDAY
February 18, 1976

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20) Splendid aspects! If you time your moves judiciously, you could put over a profitable deal now. Gains and prestige enhanced all down the line.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21) Stellar influences now stimulate inspirational ideas, intuition, finesse. Inventors, architects, creative workers in general especially favored.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) Certain favorable situations in your work area now further your interests. An excellent day for handling matters of a confidential nature.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23) An auspicious day for considering a new business commitment, but keep future objectives in mind. Don't base decisions in the light of immediate gain.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23) Splendid solar influences stimulate your spirit of enterprise and go-get-itiveness. A dandy outlook, but don't take anything for granted.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23) Iron out kinks in your plans and tactics. You should be able to handle and interpret situations ably now. In aiming for goals, however, don't overreach.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) Reach for the unusual, the eye-catcher. Learn new methods, help create understanding among associates. Day has dandy potentials.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22) Be flexible enough in thought to take in a brand new idea — and make it work! Resist tendencies toward doubting and hypercriticism.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21) Good offerings indicated. Stress your own competence but do not hesitate to accept others' ideas if practical. Intellectual pursuits favored.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Mixed influences. Certain situations may prove confusing, but remain calm. Anxiety or hasty action could further complicate matters. Use your wits.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Express your ideas and opinions discreetly but firmly. Don't leave stones unturned which may have gems beneath. A generally good day - if you cooperate.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) When not sure, don't act! Wait until all facts are in and know what they stand for. Situations could deceive if you are not alert.

YOU BORN TODAY are a highly enthusiastic individual and, though swift in action, always use your fine intelligence and work hard at being accurate. In fact, it's a blessing to have you around in emergencies, since you always "come through" - practically as well as imaginatively. You are unusually devoted to family and friends, and are a generous host. Children take to you and you would make an outstanding teacher if you can curb a tendency toward impatience when youthful charges fail to live up to your expectations. Your integrity is unquestionable and your memory remarkable. Fields in which you could make a notable success: journalism, the stage, politics, science, literature and art. Birthdate of: Andre Segovia, renowned Spanish guitarist.

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Turkish Diplomat Killed

Underground Faction Claims Responsibility

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — An Armenian underground group today claimed responsibility for the killing of Turkish diplomat Oktar Serit in a pinball parlor.

The pro-Palestinian Beirut newspaper Al Moharrer said it received a communique from what it called "The Secret Army for the Liberation of Armenia" saying Serit's death was "another warning step against Turkish fascism."

Serit, the first secretary of the Turkish Embassy, was the third Turkish diplomat to be assassinated in recent months.

Witnesses said Serit's killer drove to the shop in the busy Hamra St., shopping district in uptown Beirut Monday, entered the parlor and shot Serit once in the back with a silencer-equipped gun.

A bystander wrestled him to the ground, but the gunman slipped from his grasp and fled, leaving behind his weapon.

Some witnesses said the man who wrestled the killer exchanged words with him in Armenian, but this could not be confirmed.

The newspaper quoted the communique as saying Serit was "an agent for Turkish intelligence in Beirut" whose mission was to "coordinate with imperialist and Zionist intelligence networks in chasing revolutionary forces in the region, including the Armenian revolutionary movement."

A police source said the slaying probably was not connected with an upsurge in violence Monday, in which another man was killed and numerous persons kidnaped.

"It looks like a professional, planned murder, not just another random street slaying," a police source said. "It looks like he was marked for murder."

Last Oct. 22, the Turkish ambassador to Austria, Danes Tunaligil, was shot and killed at his desk in Vienna. Two days later, the Turkish ambassador to France, Ismail Erez, was killed along with his bodyguard, by three men who opened fire on his car with automatic weapons.

A day after Tunaligil's assassination, a communique distributed to foreign newsmen in Beirut announced the formation of the "Armenian Secret Army," a group of revolutionaries vowing to avenge the 1915 massacre of 1.5 million Armenians by the Turks.

Non-Stop Campaign

Wave Of Violence Destroying Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — The Irish Republican Army has unleashed a wave of bombings and shootings in Northern Ireland in a non-stop campaign to avenge the death of IRA hunger striker Frank Stagg.

Four bombs Monday hammered Belfast's main post office and damaged the British army headquarters next door. IRA gunmen and British soldiers traded small arms fire in a 90-minute firefight on the city's outskirts.

Belfast police said they regarded the incidents as part of an IRA revenge offensive in Northern Ireland, England and the Irish Republic that followed Stagg's death Thursday in an English prison after a 61-day hunger strike.

The IRA vowed revenge for Britain's refusal to transfer the 34-year-old Stagg, a convicted bomber, to a prison in Northern Ireland.

Eleven persons have died and more than 100 have been arrested in the embatttled province since his death. Four bombs have been planted in London.

Police said they expected the blitz to intensify with the approach of Stagg's burial in the Irish Republic later this week.

(In London, Scotland Yard reinforced its bomb squad and deployed a large anti-terrorism task force throughout the city. Bomb squad chief Roy Habershon urged vigilance, saying "We need the public's eyes and ears.")

Police said a man found murdered near the Protestant Shankhill Road district of Belfast late Monday was probably the victim of sectarian — and not necessarily IRA — violence, but gave no details of the incident.

30-Day Outlook

The National Weather Service's 30-day outlook for mid-February to mid-March is for temperatures to average above seasonal normals over the eastern half of the nation and also in the southern Great Plains and southern Plateau. Below normal temperatures are indicated for the central Pacific Coast. In unspecified areas near normal temperatures are inprospect. Precipitation is expected to exceed the median amount over north and south Pacific coasts, most of the central and southern Plateau, the northern Great Plains and from upper and middle Mississippi Valley to the Appalachian Mountians. Elsewhere, less than the median value is indicated. Above normal temperature readings and precipitation amounts are projected for this area during the 30-day period, with the recent spring-like readings and thunderstorms adding credence to the predictions. People In The News

ANGIE HONORED

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Actress Angie Dickinson was named "Woman of the Year" Monday by the Hollywood Radio and Television Society for the success of her television series "Police Woman."

She was only the fourth woman to be given the society's top honor, having been preceded by Mary Tyler Moore in 1973, Sandy Duncan in 1971 and Carol Burnett in 1968.

SHIRLEY SCORES

PARIS (UPI) — A near-sellout crowd booed Monday night when actress Shirley MacLaine's show was delayed by an hour — then cheered when she popped from behind the curtain and yelled that it wasn't her fault.

Miss MacLaine, 41, fresh from wowing critics at London's Palladium, was opening a two-night stand at Paris' Convention Hall.

Her act was delayed for more than an hour by a long and heavily orchestrated series of numbers by a Greek pop singer.

After several apologies by the management over the loudspeaker, Shirley herself yelled, "I'm ready. It's not my fault."

Striding across the stage, she knocked the microphone over with a sweep of her hand, stuck out her tongue, waved and vanished behind the curtain. The audience waved back, laughed and cheered.

Uninvited Aunt Settles Score

MILAN, Italy (UPI) — The bride and groom emerged from the church to the wails of sirens.

Two fire brigade cars and three ambulances roared into view from around the corner and screeched to a halt.

A crowd quickly gathered to watch the puzzled firemen and ambulance attendants search for a bloody traffic pileup that clearly wasn't there.

Authorities established that a phone call reporting a smashup outside the church with 10 persons killed or injured was a hoax.

Police said they traced the call to a 68-year-old aunt of the bride who was upset because she was not invited to the wedding.

She was charged with turning in a false alarm.

TAFT GOES GUNNING

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Sen. Robert Taft Jr., R-Ohio, has urged a Justice Department investigation to find out who leaked a secret House intelligence committee report to Daniel Schorr of CBS News.

"There are already indications that Daniel Schorr, the television correspondent who has admitted to being a party in the transaction, will be cited for contempt of Congress," Taft said in a statement Monday.

"But such a move does not go far enough. We must find the original source of the document and see to it that those responsible are punished to the fullest extent of the law."

PRESIDENT HELPS

MIAMI (UPI) — National Airlines President L. B. Maytag was one of four passengers who subdued a London man, who had threatened to blow up a National jet unless he was flown to Cuba, according to an airline spokesman.

Peter Jackson, 25, was scheduled to appear before a U.S. magistrate today on a charge of threatening to bomb the jet, although no explosive device was found.

Appeal To Restore Calm Issued

PLO Blamed For Riots

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israeli security sources blame the Palestine Liberation Organization for two weeks of riots in towns on the occupied West Bank of Jordan.

"They are taking advantage of the opportunities to demonstrate against the occupation," one source said, adding the Jordanian Communist party also was involved.

High school students in the Christian-Arab town of Bethlehem Monday paraded through the streets and threw rocks at police and army troops.

There also were quiet demonstrations in the nearby Christian villages of Beit Jallah and Beit Sahour, where students marched with signs supporting the PLO.

In addition, disruptions were reported in Moslem districts of the West Bank, occupied by Israel in 1967.

Israeli authorities have appealed to Arab leaders to help restore calm, but security sources said the PLO was behind the disruptions and there was little chance they would stop.

They said some of the West Bank leaders secretly supported the PLO.

The sources said the latest disturbances were the most widespread since those that marked the U.N. appearance of PLO leader Yasser Arafat in 1974.

They said King Hussein's recent moves to strengthen Jordan's claim on the West Bank on constitutional grounds were probably behind the troubles.

A court ruling that would allow Jews to pray near a Moslem shrine also was cited as a cause.

At the Kalandria refugee camp north of Jerusalem, a number of demonstrators were injured Monday in clashes with security forces after throwing rocks at police and setting up roadblocks. Six persons were arrested.

Students in the northern towns of Ramallah and El-Birah also tried to take to the streets, but security forces broke up the crowds and made a number of arrests.

In Nablus, a center of active resistance since the Israeli occupation eight years ago, students disrupted classes in five schools and threw rocks at police and soldiers from rooftops and windows.

There also were disruptions in Jericho, but quiet was reported in Jenin, Tulkarm and Kalkilia.

Jerusalem was quiet Monday, but the Arab quarters of the capital have boiled with unrest since a court ruling Jan. 29 saying there was no reason Jews should not be allowed to pray near the Al Aqsa mosque.

The silver-domed edifice is considered the third holiest shrine in Islam.

"Horse Race"

President Not Doing Well In Predictions

Publisher William Loeb of the Manchester Union Leader believes New Hampshire's Feb. 24 primary contest between President Ford and Ronald Reagan will be a "horse race." Gov. Meldrim Thomson predicts Reagan will win by a 5 per cent margin.

On the Democratic side, George Wallace captured almost 50 per cent of the votes in Mississippi's process of selecting delegates to the state convention, and Jimmy Carter got a $250,000 response to a telethon fundraiser in his home state of Georgia.

Loeb and Thomson, both Reagan supporters, made their predictions on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press" Sunday.

"I sincerely believe that Ronald Reagan will win ... by 5 per cent, or 55 per cent," Thomson said when asked to predict the outcome of the GOP primary.

Loeb, asked for his assessment, replied, "I think it's a horse race."

In Florida, early polls showed Reagan running ahead of Ford, but enthusiastic turnouts which greeted Ford at several stops during his two-day swing across the state convinced some aides he may pull out a win March 9.

The President told a crowd of 15,000 in St. Petersburg no candidate with a philosophy to the right or left of his own could win in November.

More than 15,000 Massachusetts Democrats held some 130 caucuses in the state's 12 congressional districts Sunday to pick 1,300 potential delegates to the party's national convention.

The biggest draws at Sunday's meetings appeared to be for Morris Udall, Birch Bayh and Carter. Those for Henry Jackson and Shriver drew somewhat fewer and those for Milton Shapp and antiabortion candidate Ellen McCormack still less.

Wallace, who scored an earlier victory in the precinct caucuses last month, had 48.8 per cent of the votes in the Mississippi county weekend meetings with only a few scattered areas not reporting late Sunday. Carter, with 11.5 per cent, and Sargent Shriver, with 10.8 per cent, battled for second place.
